“ Dad, I miss you every second of the day. The only thing that heals the pain is listening to music because it is how I stay connected to you. In my heart I believe you are always closer than i think. Thankyou for being a devoted father, grandfather, husband, friend to everyone.... Your advice i had carried with me, always. trust and believe I utilized it. Thank you for taking such good care of Mason. Thank you for giving me such unique, funny, smart, strong brothers. Mason knows what true love is because he is constantly surrounded by it just as all the rest of us are ....but your bond with him will never dissipate. You're always in his heart and he is always with you. I hope you're with your family in the sky singing your heart out. Your children will always want you and need you around. I'll miss the hugs you gave me walking through the door, the kisses I gave you on your cheeks when you dropped me off saying i love you and thank you. Dad, you did more for me than anyone else would because you loved me unconditionally. Your loyalty was without question. Fly high dad.

Kerry M. Davis

P:S I'll always look to you for advice, asking you to guide me.in the right direction because every piece of advice youve ever given me has never steered me in the wrong direction. I'll forever be grateful to God for having you as my father.

“ To our dear friend Mickey. I met him 20,years ago and we had this weird connection based on humor, politics and last but far from least music. I had DJ equipment and Mickey would come over to practice new songs, sing duets and just enjoy each other's friendship. He and my husband Kenny were also Patriots fanatics so he would join Kenny to watch the games. We moved to Florida 4 years ago but always called each other and s stayed connected. Mickey, thank you for coming into our lives. Every time I hear songs like Delila and you raise me up, we'll be remembering you.

Ok, what do you say about someone who definitely had to be special to win the heart of one of my best friends!!! When Dawn and I went to the Redwood, never expected a romance to happen, but you never know when two people meet what us going to happen. You are a good person and will never forget you always sang my favorite song when I asked, DISCO INFERNO!!! May you rest in peace, and continue to entertain everybody with your wonderful personality and witty sense of humor. RIP

“ I met Mickey over 30 years ago at Wang. We instantly bonded over Elvis Presley and our love for his music. We shared many laughs and good times together and I am devastated at this news of his passing. He truly was one of the nicest most caring men I've ever known in my life and I am going to miss him terribly.

“ Mickey came into our (the Doucette family's) lives nearly forty years ago.

My first encounter with him was a Christmas Day phone call in which he hastily tried to convey a message for me to deliver to my family. I hung up the phone and realized that I wasn't entirely sure what he'd said! (It had something to do with why he wasn't there right then.)

That was to happen a lot over the next few decades or so. That lovely voice was always jumping from topic to topic so quickly that keeping up was challenge.

"I just want to say this..." was a favorite phrase of Mickey's when he wanted to leave a topic dangling, and move onto another conversation, so, I just want to say this...

I was still a child when I first met Mickey; he was a significant formative influence in my life. He taught me much of what I know about sarcasm, through our constant practice of his favorite hobby (verbal jousting). "You're quick," he's say whenever I brought him up short, "I like that!"

And I just want to say this...

At the age of 13, Mickey introduced me to the first really good novel I'd ever read in my life (Cujo), making me a lifelong fan of Stephen King's realistic horror. We shared an understanding that the darkness in life is often just as important as the light...

And I just want to say this...

Several years after I had open-heart surgery, Mickey ended up doing the same. So that's maybe one area where I was ahead of him. Every time I encountered him after that, we'd compare notes about how we were getting on. As fellow cardiac patients, he felt, we had our own exclusive club. "You and I, we're like...we're blood brothers," he kept telling me.

And I just want to say this...

Mickey, you are loved and you'll be missed by all who have known you. I'm grateful to Dawn for bringing you into our lives.

I didn't know my dad very well we saw each other in 2014 he came to Rhinelander Wisconsin when I turned 50, and I was up vacationing in Rhinelander Wisconsin. And I can remember talking about movies and music. He always said that he loved me. And I always felt so good when I talk to him on the phone. I will miss him. I Rest in peace dad. I'm glad I got to see you before you passed away. Your son, Michael Davis

We will miss Mickey for so many reasons. Kenny and he were fanatics when it came to football. Mickey would come over and they'd have these weird superstitions like who sat in which chair. I will always remember our special friendship which was mostly the days he would come to my house and we would spend hours singing new songs, duets, he could sing anything and do it well. He had a great sense of humor as well. Mickey, if there are singing angels up in heaven you my dear friend can show them how it's done.

Mickey, you will so be missed. When we saw each other your stories were definitely engaging especially trying to keep up with the story. They always made me smile and as I write this I smile, now thinking about your expressions as you told your stories.

My sister just reminded me that I was nine or ten when I first met Mickey, and I'm fifty now, so...for more than forty years he was a factor in our lives. You had an impact on people, Mickey, and you won't be forgotten. You helped create some amazing kids (granted, Doucette DNA helps a lot :- ) .

I hope that you've been reunited with the cat that you had when I first met you --- Meow, who went out on the road with you, touring the country so that you could sing for her. ...We cat people, we never quit...we do it all for them. And we understand each other. Give my best to Meow. She was a great cat.
